To authors, The authors described the sensitivity and specificity of ultrasound vs. hysteroscopy to detect three uterine pathologies that cause infertility. The strength was that in all cases histological diagnose were made. Although the "aim" of the two diagnostic methods are different and thus simply comparing the data may not provide direct usefulness in everyday practice, describing these data may be of some value. The authors described the study limitations. The authors did not write the reference list adequately. Would you please complete/edit the reference list?
