PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
In the revised article, there are no alterations of the corrected text, and the "superfluous" illustrative drawings remained in their places. Give proper feedback against my previous comments.	I explained the source and compilation of data (see modified text) I leave it to the Editor to judge whether Figs are just 'illustrative' or reinforce the narrative. Feel free to delete any or all of them. I include them to show readers the sort of development being made now in south China. Most have no idea I have amended the Conclusions You are entitled to your opinion. This is a COMMENTARY. There is no hypothesis to test. Just, but not entirely, thoughts on the complex events happening in the coastal regions along the South China Sea. As for the superfluous Figs. I did throw it open to the Editors' discretion as whether any or all are to deleted I am grateful to this reviewer for taking the time to read and comment. I have acted on some but not all points that are made this review.
