Compulsory REVISION comments	The use of venous thrombolysis has allowed to reduce disability in patients with cerebral infarction. The authors present a case of unusual cerebral infarction managed with venous thrombolysis and favorable evolution. The article is interesting and may be published after the suggested corrections. About this case in important comment:                      1. It is suggested to revise the writing by an english native speaker                      2. It is suggested to completely edit the clinical case. In relation to the clinical case I have the following questions:                      1. How many days the patient was sent home.                      2. Is it possible to obtain better quality images?
