

Editor's Comment:

This clinical work adds important information concerning E. Pylori diagnostics. It has been carefully designed with a sufficient sample of patients and executed according to the ethics regulations.

The reviewers raised several reasonable and important issues in relation to the article structure. Main issues were the quality of language and the style as well as several points that needed clarification.

The authors responded and made all necessary corrections (providing analytical explanations) as suggested by the reviewers - including the English language.

To my opinion this original piece of work can now be published as it is, therefore I suggest to be accepted

Editor's Details:

Dr. Evangelos Marinos
Associate Professor, University of Athens, School of Medicine, Laboratory of Biology, Athens, Greece