

Editor's Comment:

My comments just for your reference, as follows.

1. Obviously, the authors of this article did lots of work for Himalayan Glaciers and their Regional Variations by SAR and DEM etc., It took a lot of effort, although the data scale is short, but this kind of research in this area is very meaningful, provides a kind of research idea. From this point of view, I am inclined to accept the publication of this paper.

2. However, the authors still seem to be students or just take part in the work, the rigour of writing needs to be improved in the future. Many of the comments made by previous commentators are right and need to be carefully accepted. After the author carefully modifies the full text again, including statements, vocabulary, etc., after that, I think it can be published.

3. But the final decision is in the hands of this journal.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Zhenghong Chen
Associate Professor, China Meteorological Administration Training Centre, China Meteorological Administration, NO.46, Zhongguancun South Street, Beijing 100081, China