

Editor's Comment:

The main problem of the paper is the language. Some parts are unclear. The selected doses of the tested compounds have to be explained. Basic clinical observations and health status data have to be addressed. The obtained results and discussion have to be separated. Limitations and clinical implications should be added to the study. List of references does not follow the instruction for authors. The abstract has to be rewritten.

The current version does not pass criteria for publication in any journal.
