

Editor's Comment:

I have always believed in the first reviewers' comments as it is the time where they dedicate their efforts on reading, reasoning, analyzing and deciding the fate of the article. Neither reviewer rejected the article at first place, meaning it has a significant knowledge contribution. It's obvious that the rejection note was due to failure to include comments in the conclusion section and updating of references. However, authors have significantly improved the article despite some TYPE SETTING in line 75-90 which may be presented as a single paragraph and the word 'THESE' in the line 354 to be singular 'THIS'.
