

Editor's Comment:

According to the reviewers' comments, it cannot be published until the author makes the necessary revisions mentioned in the one of the reviewer's comments.

(1) The paper was not proofread – there are still many grammar mistakes and the sentences are not correct, which makes harder reading and comprehending the paper – these false sentence structures diminish the quality of the paper tremendously.

(2) The names of the used sources/authors are still not spelled nor written correctly.

(3) Why are some common nouns written in capital letters?

Unfortunately, it is not clear why the authors have not corrected the suggested issues, which are present from the beginning.
