Compulsory REVISION comments	The manuscript reviews the consequences of Cardiac Resynchronization Therapy on cardiac metabolism and contractility in patients with hypertrophied and deficient hearts. The paper is generally well written, and, considering the importance of cardiovascular disease over the world, raises questions that should be given to the attention of pacemakers and/or defibrillators manufacturers, as well as to the whole scientific community. I suggest the publication of the manuscript, of which I point out minor revisions in the text.	Thank you very much for your contribution. We have taken into account your preoccupations in the text (see yellow color).
