Compulsory REVISION comments	The authors in your conclusion present the vegetable extract as a new weapon against cancer. However, there are several species of substances present in the extract, somehow the flavonoids are anti-inflammatory and other as the Saponins are pro-inflammatory. Many mushroom extract studies present results corroborate with the idea that only natural extracts cannot eliminate tumours. The addition of new therapies to conventional therapies, are the ones that present the best results. Would this extract an action of combating tumours in isolation? Can you abandon the traditional forms in the treatments of tumours? I think the results are promising, but the conclusion is precipitated
