Compulsory REVISION comments	This manuscript investigated a very interesting phenomenon that rheological properties of the erythrocytes maybe affected by weakened static magnetic field of the Earth. Although the sample looks relatively few in numbers, the findings are very interesting and meaningful. Line Legends should be proved for each graph with multiple curves. The last subgraph in Figure 5 is NOT in English.
Minor REVISION comments	It would be helpful for readers if more details added on how statistics carried out, including sample amounts, and so on. In Figure 5, there is an obvious discontinuity at time around 300s. The authors are suggested to explain the cause of this discontinuity.
Optional/General comments	More proofs regarding the repeatability of the experiment would substantially increase the eloquence of the conclusions.
