

Editor's Comment:

Please find attached manuscripts for my comments.

The author MUST effect all corrections before the manuscript should be considered for publication.

Author should read through the manuscripts and utilise punctuation marks as appropriate.

Grammatical reconstructions should be considered where necessary.

Tables and figures should appear strictly in accordance to the journal guideline, and not as the author placed them in this manuscript.

Author must discussed the result of this work. The discussion was too shallow and may not be acceptable for publication in this journal if we must maintain a high standard of the journal. The author should adequately compare this work with other published articles as this was found missing in this manuscript.

Author should be consistent with style of paragraphing

On this ground, I suggest the manuscript is returned to the author for necessary fortification and should be returned to me for verification before it could be published.
