

Editor's Comment:

We analyzed the evaluation process and the final paper. The author made most of the modifications and additions required by the reviewers. However, the paper is accepted for publication only if the punctuation is corrected. Separating decimals is done when commas, when with a point - must be done only with a point (example 23.3) - both in tables and in text, and the thousands are separated by comma (example 10,000).

After this correction in the entire paper, it can be accepted for publication.
