Compulsory REVISION comments	Reviewer's comment: In your research topic, Area of study is not mentioned. The accepted way to write 'Strongyloides ratti' is in italics; or write and underline separately the genus and species names	Thank you for this observation, but however due to the nature of our research, mentioning the study area in the topic does not seem to be important since our study is not a case study and it does not tend to predict a trend or incidence of diseases in a particular area. It focused in developing and evaluating an effective diagnostic method.  Thank you, we have corrected this in manuscript.
Minor REVISION comments	Abstract: is written as a single block of text; there should be no sub-topics. Recommendation (at least one) was not given, it is mandatory to give at least one major recommendation in your Abstract  40C – please learn how to write 40°C. Applied to other sections of your write up. Make an insertion of the degree symbol from menu bar please.  Et al., is written correctly as et al. , please. (in italics when typed).	Thank you for this suggestion regarding the abstract. But the abstract was written based on format (sub topics) given by journal in their websites.  We agree with this comment, we have included a recommendation to abstracts section.  Noted, we have incorporated this correction throughout the manuscript
