Compulsory REVISION comments	The abstract is very problematic. The paper clearly does not "interrogate". If it "take(s) precedence over other human social interactions", what do you call "cultural, religious and constitutional practice". Those are social interactions. Why identify polygamy as being in every continent if your focus is sub-Saharan Africa? This does not make sense to me. You state: "Polygamy is now at the centre stage of Western discourse for global acceptance.", but you don't prove it. In fact, you use sources to deny it.  In fact, your conclusions are more accurate than your intro abstract. When you state: "In this work, we have isolated how religious, socio-cultural and trans-national practice of polygamous form of marriage is presented in four different Nigerian dramas.", that is in fact what you do. So, rewrite the abstract to focus on what you actually do.
