Compulsory REVISION comments	Sustainability is one of the pillars of biotechnology from the production of food to the production of medicines. The screen study reveals the care and dedication with which the authors conducted the essay, reflecting a masterpiece about the process of using natural fonts as a survival and maintenance of nature through self-sustainability. The vegetable under study is widely used by the pharmacopoeial industry in the production of medicines and dermocosmetics. A study with this impact provides support for expanding reproduction and maintenance rates of active therapeutic arsenals, whether through the production of new drugs or food. I congratulate the authors for their brilliant work.
