Compulsory REVISION comments	Today, ICTs have permeate every sector, researchers and stakeholders around the world are interested in identify ways ICTs can be use in different fields. Thus, this paper has potential of making a significant contribution to the field of information communication technology, education and the tourism. However, the current version of the paper needs some little improvements or adjustment.
Minor REVISION comments	The introduction of this study looks more of literature review rather that detail background issues surrounding ICT, education and tourism. The author will do well if the introduction is recast to link ICT, education and tourism effectively. In so doing, the author clearly shows prospects of application of ICTs in education and in particular tourism. It will also be better if the author can identified the gap in knowledge which makes the study significant.
Optional/General comments	The structure of this study makes reading the work unexciting. There are too many subtitles. Some of these titles can be merge into paragraphs.
