

Editor's Comment:

As other editors have suggested the manuscript still needs major improvement.

First of all, and a very obvious one, the references are not formatted correctly and there are numerous grammatical mistakes. Secondly, the authors make statements about nutritional intake without referring to any adequate references. The carbohydrate content has been introduced but the authors have no idea if these values contribute to a sugar intake (their objects are fruit).

I strongly believe that if they have not managed to improve their manuscript for three available revisions now they are not likely to meet the editor's expectations in a fourth version.

I would advise that the manuscript is rejected based on authors negligence of reviewer/editor's comments on improvement.
