PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
The author has not sufficiently responded to request for significant revisions. The false claim that mate selection is the most important decision in life is retained. The methodology employed is not properly justified. The discussion section is defective. Too many assertions are unsupported.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. We hereby authorize the editorial team to remove such false claim that "mate selection IS THE MOST IMPORTANT decision in life." 2. We have highlighted the methodology description we provided in red. We hereby request that the editorial team provide us with 'defined instruction(s)/guidelines' on what to add on the existing information. Note: We do not want to provide false information (what we have not done initially). 3. We hereby request the editorial team to point out the missing elements as to the discussion section as well as the unsupported assertions. Note: These will provide us with a clear picture on what we are expected to do.
