|-------------------------------------|--|---|
| Compulsory REVISION comments | The manuscript is aimed to assess the contamination level by heavy metals in six different brands of infant formula samples. This evaluation is extremely important, because the long-term exposure, even at low levels, of toxic elements, especially cadmium and lead, can lead to adverse effects to health. The manuscript needs a revision from an English mother-tongue before publication. I added my comments in the text in track change mode. Moreover, I suggest the authors to search for an update, if available, of limits for heavy metals set by WHO/UNICEF. | |
