EDITORIAL COMMENT'S on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to editor's comments
I have thoroughly gone through the manuscript no. 2019/MRJI/51076 entitled "Molecular detection of methicillin resistance genes from clinical sources and hospital environments" submitted for publication in Microbiology Research Journal International. I have also seen the comments from the reviewers and response by the authors. I have made corrections, suggestions and comments in the text of manuscript. Authors should look into them while rewriting the manuscript. English language needs improvement.	I have responded to all the comments raised by the reviewer expect in some occasions where the reviewer also made mistakes for example Gram is a name , so the word starts with capital letter. Likewise Mannitol, the name starts with capital letter. The first reviewer and the second reviewer are contradicting themselves. All the points raised by the first reviewer that I corrected, the second reviewer opposed it. Well, I have corrected all the issues raised. Thank you.
